Significance. Ultramarine blue and Air Force yellow are the Air Force colors. Blue alludes to the sky, the primary theater of Air Force operations. Yellow refers to the sun and the excellence required of Air Force personnel. The emblem is symbolic of the Wing. The heraldic chevron represents support and signifies the Wing's support of the Nation's quest for peace. The lightning bolt represents the speed and aggressiveness with which the unit performs. The colors represent the Air Corps and commemorate the service of the 56th Fighter Group, whose honors and history the Wing inherits.

Narrative. The 56th Medical Group was constituted on 18 March 1969 as the USAF Regional Hospital MacDill. It activated at MacDill AFB, Florida on 1 July 1969. The Hospital reported to the 15th Tactical Fighter Wing until 1 October 1970, when it began reporting to the 1st Tactical Fighter Wing. On 30 June 1975, the Hospital fell under the 56th Tactical Fighter (later, Tactical Training, then Fighter) Wing. The Hospital provided both in and out patient care for all personnel assigned to MacDill AFB, including Headquarters, U.S. Readiness Command and Headquarters, U.S. Central Command. On 15 March 1987, the Hospital was redesignated as the 56th Medical Group. On that date it established a subordinate organization, the 56th Tactical Hospital (alter the 56th Air Transportable Hospital). On 4 January 1994, the 56th Medical Group and its subordinate inactivated at MacDill AFB. On 1 April 1994, the 56th Medical Group reactivated at Luke AFB, Arizona, when the 56th Fighter Wing moved to the base. The group also activated four subordinate squadrons that day, 56th Aerospace Medicine Squadron, 56th Dental Squadron, 56th Medical Operations Squadron, and 56th Medical Support Squadron. During Fiscal Year 2005, Air Staff ordered a reduction in services. In September and October 2005, the group terminated the ambulatory procedure unit, operating rooms, Women's Health Clinic, and extended hours at the clinic and podiatry. In 2009, the group began teaching new nurses how to be Air Force nurses through the Nurse Transition Program at Scottsdale Healthcare System in Scottsdale, Arizona. In 2013, the group began a fellowship program with the Scottsdale Healthcare System which gave nurses experience with critical care and emergency trauma cases. Today the group provides Phase II Medical Laboratory Apprentice Training, which gives Laboratory Technician students hands on experience. The group also runs the Medical Simulation Center, which allows a myriad of diverse training programs from Resuscitation Skills, and Self-Aid/Buddy Care to Sustainment Trauma. The 56th Medical Group continues to deploy medical teams around the world to help in humanitarian operations.
